

Date: 20 August 2007

Owen and Kaye Pope the founders of Anathoth wish to thank their many customers for their support and encouragement for the past eighteen years. We can now advise you that we have not owned the Anathoth brand since August 2003.

We would like to get back into the jam and pickle business again and our vision this time includes some customer ownership. So we have started a new brand called "Pope" and formed a new company Pope Marketing Ltd. (PML).

Pope Marketing Ltd is considering making an offer of shares to the public, for the purpose of purchasing land, factories, plant and machinery, to grow, manufacture and market, fruit and vegetables into jams and pickles.

Pope Marketing Ltd is seeking preliminary indications of interest from people wishing to invest $1000 or more. No money is currently sought and no application for shares will be accepted or money received unless the subscriber has first received an investment statement. Your indication of interest does not oblige you to participate in any share offer that PML may make.

Please register your indication of interest by completing and sending the form below.
